

The Music Division Clipping File consists of about 60,000 folders containing clippings – articles clipped from newspapers and magazines – about people and subjects. The number of clippings in each folder varies and can contain from one to a nearly a hundred clippings. The files are divided into two portions, a Names file and a Subjects file.

What you are reading is an inventory of the Music Division's clipping file for individual names.

(Anything that is not an individual name, such as multiple names used for performing duos or ensembles, are considered subjects. All entries for the subject files can be found within the online NYPL catalog.)

The names portion of the file (about 46,000 folders) contains clippings on individuals. In some cases, individuals will have multiple folders indicating a large number of clippings. Sometimes these multiple folders may not have any distinguishing division, or they may be subdivided based on years of named person's life, or based on their creative output, or a combination of both.

Names have not been standardized according to the Library of Congress's Name Authority File (used for virtually all library catalogs in the United States). As a result, some names may diverge from how that person is currently known. (Examples:) Users are urged to try multiple versions of a person's name or to browse the list. (This problem is particularly acute if the person's name involves issues of transliteration from non-Western languages such as Russian, Chinese, Japanese, Korean or others).

When filling out call slips to request folders from the names portion of the Clipping File, the classmark for the names file should be indicated as:

followed by the name of the individual (last name first).
